GOLF COURSE SUPERINTENDENT AT GUYAN GOLF & COUNTRY CLUB

Guyan Golf & Country Club is looking for a Golf Course Superintendent with strong agronomic and leadership skills with a passion for providing exceptional golfing conditions.

GUYAN GOLF & COUNTRY CLUB

The beautiful Guyan Golf & Country Club that exists today in scenic Huntington, West Virginia, is a tribute to the resourcefulness and courage of its members. Guyan is a club that rose from the tragedy of fire on two occasions, in 1932, and again in 1954. Exemplifying the faith of its founders, Guyan soon rose again. The membership set about the task of erecting a new clubhouse. It was built and opened less than a year and a half later. The speed with which the new building was planned, designed, and made a reality stands as an accolade to the character of Guyan's membership.

In 1942 4,000 watched an exhibition between Arnold Browning and Denny Shute against Byron Nelson and Harold McSpahen. Arnold Browning was with Guyan for 50 years as caddie master and club maker and then as head golf professional. Guyan was also the home club of William "Bill" Campbell, Past President of the United States Golf Association.

The Guyan Golf Course was built in 1922 in the east section of Huntington. The course is a Herbert Strong Design par 71 course. Guyan measures 6,523 yards from the championship tees, and features medium-sized greens with just enough woods to make it interesting. The course is a transition zone golf course with Bermuda fairways, Bent grass greens, and Bermuda and Bent tees. There is a spring and fall aerification. The course is open for golf 12 months per year, weather permitting.

The course has also hosted several West Virginia Opens. The first, in 1936, was won by Sam Snead, who also qualified for his first U.S. Open at the course.

Located in the Tri-State region, Huntington sits on the mid-section of the scenic and historic Ohio River at the point where West Virginia, Ohio and Kentucky meet. The city is home to 49,177 citizens and serves a Tri-State area of 365,000. With the perfect combination of small town charm and big city feel, Huntington boasts an impressive, historic downtown with endless opportunities for shopping, dining and entertainment. The city is the home of Marshall University which brings a vibrancy to the city as well as many cultural and sports events.

In the last several years, the Club has focused on and been committed to improving air movement and reducing shade on the greens through extensive tree and brush removal. The Club will continue improving the growing environment for all turf areas.
